Jurisprudence

Module 5 – Abuse Prevention

Prevention of sexual abuse of patients

There has been considerable public discussion and debate surrounding the responsibilities of health care professionals in preventing and reporting the sexual abuse of patients. Ontario's Regulated Health Professions Act (RHPA) requires that regulated health care professions develop sexual abuse prevention programs. The CMRITO Sexual Abuse Prevention Program can be found in the publication Prevention of Sexual Abuse of Patients – Introductory Instructor's Guide for Educational Programs in Medical Radiation Technology. Members of the CMRITO must be familiar with the contents of the Sexual Abuse Prevention Program and use the communication and touching principles described in the program in their practice (these principles are outlined below). More information on the prevention of sexual abuse can be found in the CMRITO's publication, What you must know about ... sexual abuse. This publication can be found on the CMRITO website here.

Zero tolerance

Consistent with the RHPA, the CMRITO has adopted a philosophy of zero tolerance of sexual abuse of patients. This philosophy of zero tolerance means that no act of sexual abuse (as defined by the RHPA) is ever acceptable and sexual abuse must never be tolerated.

Definition of sexual abuse under RHPA

Under the Health Professions Procedural Code (Schedule 2 of the RHPA), sexual abuse is defined as follows:

**Does not include behaviour or remarks of a clinical nature appropriate to the service being provided*

The Code identifies sexual abuse of a patient by a health care professional as an act of professional misconduct. The RHPA defines the penalties for a member who has been found guilty of professional misconduct by sexually abusing a patient. In such a case, a panel of the CMRITO’s Discipline Committee must:

1. reprimand the member
2. revoke the member’s certificate of registration if the sexual abuse consisted of, or included, any of the following:
  - i. sexual intercourse
  - ii. genital to genital, genital to oral, oral to genital, or oral to anal contact
  - iii. masturbation of the member by, or in the presence of, the patient
  - iv. masturbation of the patient by the member
  - v. encouragement of the patient by the member to masturbate in the presence of the member
  - vi. touching of a sexual nature of the patient’s genitals, anus, breasts or buttocks
  - vii. other conduct of a sexual nature prescribed in regulations made pursuant to clause 43(1)(u) of the Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991
3. in addition to the above penalties, a panel of the Discipline Committee may impose other penalties, such as requiring the member to pay a fine of not more than $35,000 to the Minister of Finance.

Communication and touching principles: best practice for members of CMRITO

Problems may arise with the very broad definition of sexual abuse of patients contained in the legislation. Many health care professionals have raised concerns about the exact interpretation of “touching of a sexual nature”, or the types of remarks which can be considered “of a sexual nature”. It is important to understand, however, that sexual nature does not include touching, behaviour or remarks of a clinical nature appropriate to the services provided.

Considerable responsibility is placed on health professionals to communicate effectively by paying attention to the ways in which information is conveyed and words selected when speaking to patients. Members must also be active and compassionate listeners and show sensitivity to their patient's concerns and needs. Awareness of cultural and physical barriers which may interfere with clear communication – and respect for these differences – will help members to practise the profession in a responsive and responsible manner.

The principles set out in the chart below will help members to achieve the high standards of integrity and effectiveness that should be part of their pattern of care for patients:

Communication Principles for Members of the CMRITO	Touching Principles for Members of the CMRITO
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• talk before you touch</li><li>• treat each patient as an individual</li><li>• never assume</li><li>• reserve judgement</li><li>• speak directly to the patient</li><li>• maintain confidentiality</li><li>• create a safe environment</li></ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• assume nothing</li><li>• maintain the patient's dignity</li><li>• show respect for the patient</li><li>• do not hurt the patient</li><li>• touch only where necessary</li><li>• respect cultural diversity</li><li>• get the patient's consent</li><li>• remember patients can change their mind</li></ul>

Mandatory reporting of sexual abuse

The RHPA makes it mandatory to file a written report if you have reasonable grounds, obtained in the course of your practice, to believe that a patient has been sexually abused by any member of the CMRITO or any other College (for a list of all provincial health regulatory colleges, consult the Federation of Health Regulatory Colleges of Ontario's website at <http://www.regulatedhealthprofessions.on.ca>). While this has usually been the practice of our profession, the Act clearly defines this as a responsibility for members.

Failure to report sexual abuse of patients when there are reasonable grounds to believe that the abuse has occurred is an offence under the Act and can lead to severe penalties.

Specifically, if a member believes a patient has been sexually abused, then they must:

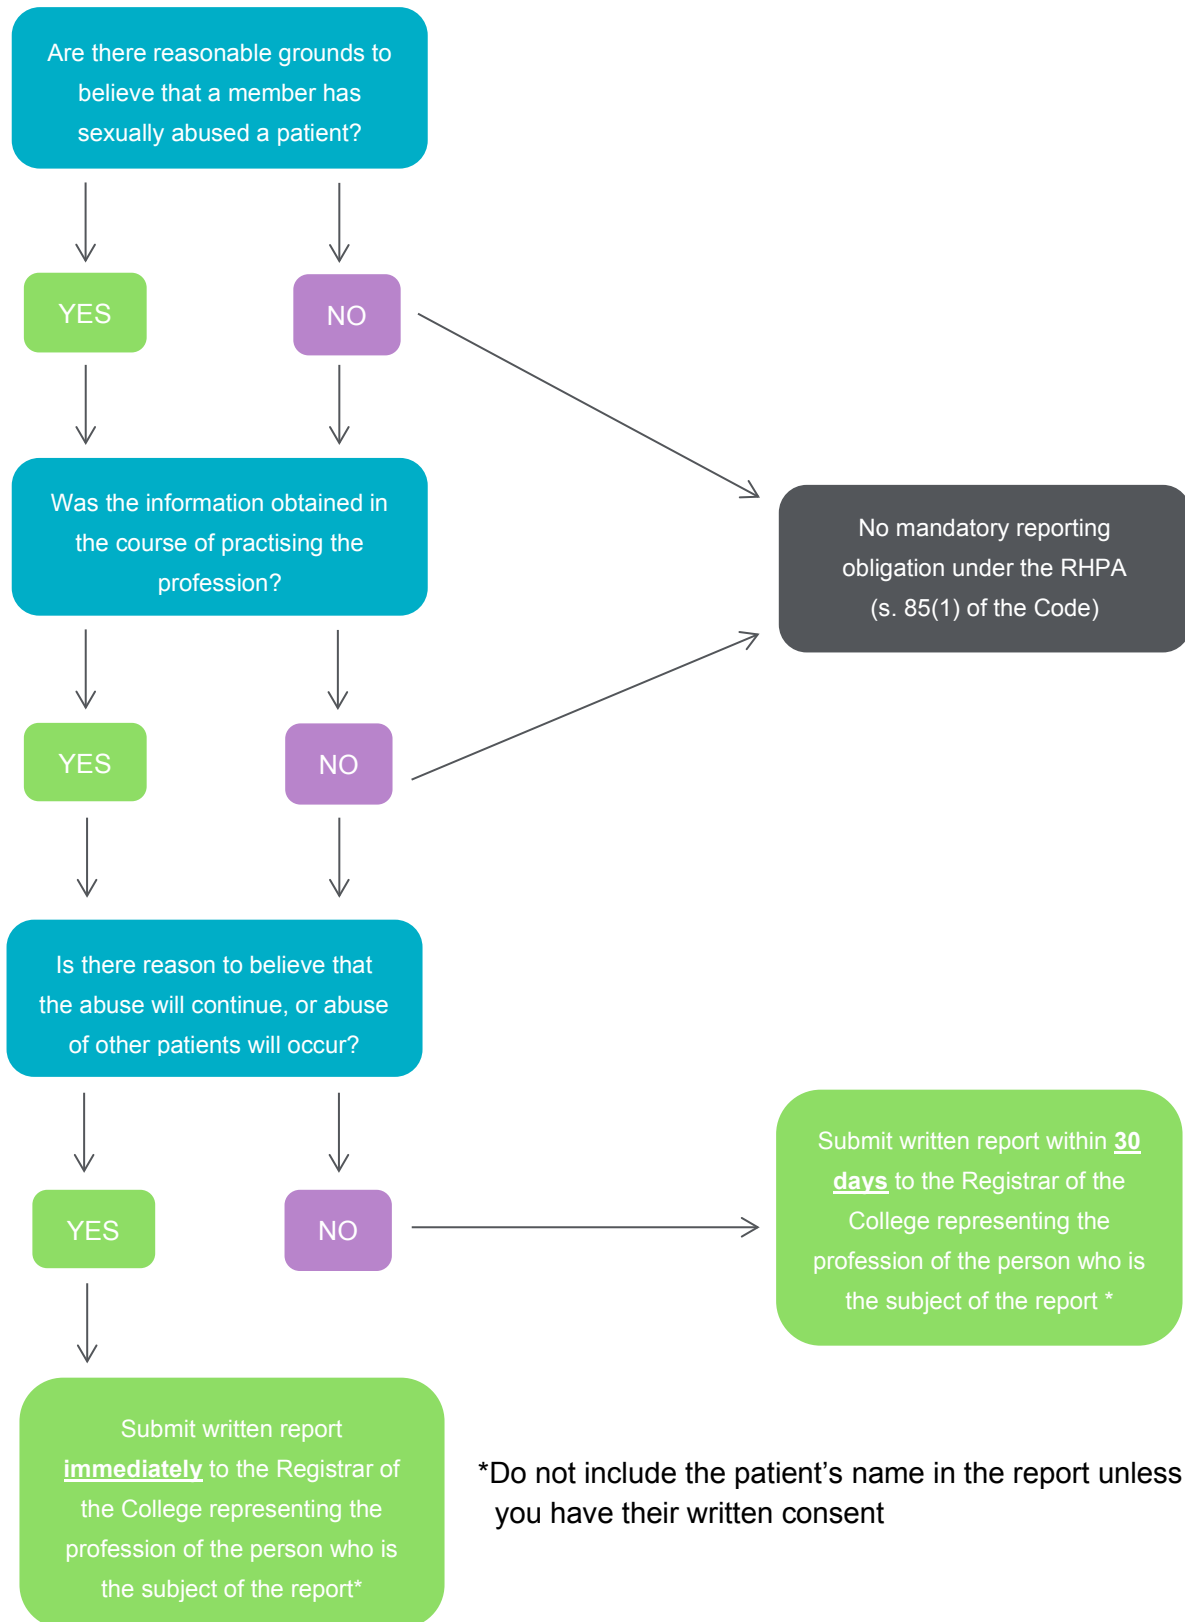

- submit a written report within 30 days to the Registrar of the College regulating the profession of the person who is subject of the report;
- submit the report immediately if there is reason to believe the abuse will continue or that abuse of other patients will occur.

And keep in mind these other requirements for submitting a report:

- members are required only to report information obtained in the course of practising the profession;
- members must only submit a report if the name of the practitioner who was involved in the alleged abuse is known;
- the patient's name must not be included in the report without their written consent.

Remember, too, that the RHPA provides protection to a person who files a report in good faith from actions or other proceedings being taken against them.

Decision-making guide for mandatory reporting of sexual abuse

Child abuse

Mandatory reporting of child abuse

Under the Child, Youth and Family Services Act, 2017 (CYFSA), health professionals, including members of the CMRITO, are required to report when a child is in need of protection. Failure to report is an offence that carries a potential penalty of $5,000.

If you suspect a child is, or may be in need of protection you must report immediately and directly to the local Children's Aid Society.

Remember:

1. you have an ongoing duty to report, despite previous report that may have been made;
2. you cannot rely on others to make the report;
3. the CYFSA provides protection to individuals who file reports in good faith; and
4. unlike the obligation to report sexual abuse, the obligation to report child abuse extends beyond a member's professional practice, to all aspects of their life.

If a member is in doubt about their reporting obligations, they may contact the CMRITO or the Children's Aid Society for guidance. You can find the Children's Aid Society in your area through the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies' website at <http://www.oacas.org/>.

Facility/employer abuse reporting requirements

Members should familiarize themselves with the reporting requirements imposed on them by their facility/employer and review all relevant policies. The reporting obligations of the facility are in addition to the reporting requirements imposed on members by legislation.

Therefore, if a facility policy imposes a greater reporting obligation on members than the CMRITO Standards of Practice, members are expected to comply with the facility policy. On the other hand, if the facility policy imposes a lesser reporting obligation on members than the CMRITO Standards of Practice, members are expected to comply with the Standards of Practice. This is because the Standards of Practice set out the minimum standards of professional practice and conduct for members, and hold that members must adhere to all legislative requirements. Because the mandatory reporting of abuse is a legislative requirement, members must comply.
